The guildhall of the “Zunft zur Meisen” is a representative Rococo building of the 18th century located on the left bank of the river Limmat in the heart of the city of Zurich. It has a wrought-iron gatehouse, which opens onto Münsterhof where also the Fraumünster church is situated. The interior of the guild house Meisen includes stucco ceilings, wall paintings, masonry heaters and other features among the most beautiful Rococo creations still existing in Zurich. The city’s famous old guildhall is still a restaurant and offers a unique and elegant ambiance.

In the 19th century, writer Gottfried Keller and painter Ferdinand Hodler were among the most famous Swiss guests of the former “Café zur Meisen”, and in the 20th century Gustaf V of Sweden, Elizabeth II of the United Kingdom and Jimmy Carter visited. On 19 September 1946 Winston Churchill gave his famous speech on the future of Europe from the balcony of this building.

The guild house Meisen also houses the porcelain and faience collection of the Swiss National Museum.
